Ad cancellations and revisions must be submitted in writing and received by the material due date listed above. If material is not received by the due date, AORN may repeat previous Company ads or, if no previous Company ad is available, AORN may run an AORN house ad, at full rate, at advertiser's expense.

No Product Comparisons. Advertisers must present their product or service information in a professional, accurate manner without being derisive of other products. No direct product comparisons may be made. Libelous or inflammatory ads will not be accepted.

AORN Guidelines for Perioperative Practice. Claims that a product "meets" or "complies with" AORN Guidelines are not allowed. Advertisers may say that a product or service is "designed to meet" AORN Guidelines. All such claims will be reviewed by AORN clinical staff for accuracy. AORN may require ads making clinical claims to include a footnote citing source material. Web advertisements may place the footnoted information on the linked Company webpage. Ads showing clinical negligence or making unsubstantiated claims will not be accepted. Photos must be in line with applicable AORN Guidelines.
